

For the final plague on Egypt, God told the Israelites to sacrifice a lamb and put its blood on their doors. An angel passed through the town and the firstborn son of all the Egyptian families died, but the firstborn of the Israelite families survived. This was called the Passover. (Exodus 12)